[ speech V - about waiting ]

“Apathy is uncomfortable for you, personally you fight against it, but in spite all your determination shown for the outside, you don’t know the weapons. You will have a feeling that it has to do something with the fact, that if you would let go, you wouldn’t be able to bare it, it’s about fear, yes... but in spite that you admit all these things, your state will not change. You will wait for something like a click, shift, enlightenment, realization, but you will wait for it as for a sign, that you are behind the situation already. (...)

I’m sorry you came to look for the answer here, here you have to wait in the queue.”
